After each submittal deadline, staff will evaluate the caseload and adjust schedules accordingly. If there is a large caseload, items will be scheduled on a first-submitted, first-serve basis. The remaining items will be scheduled for the next available meeting. According to the Zoning Ordinance applications are required to be heard not less than 35 or more than 75 days after an application is filed. Submitting your application by an established deadline date does not guarantee that you will be placed on the corresponding Zoning Board of Adjustment, Subdivision Technical Review Committee or Land Use Control Board meeting.
